[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE RECORD UNION

WASHINGTON, April 11th .- The report of the Election Committee shows that the charges of fraud and ballot box stuffing in South Carolina are doubtless true. It is shown that a Republican majority of 5,000 for Mackey was thrown out and a Democrat seated. In some places the ballot-boxes contained more Democratic votes than the whole number of voters. These facts justify Brawster's letters. The Northwest Storm-Remarkable Freaks of the Wind.

JUNCTION CITY (Ks), April 11th,-The wreck made by Friday night's storm at Fort

Riley, and the freaks of the wind, without coular proof, are simply beyond belief. That there was no loss of life is nothing less than miraculous. The wind pursued a spiral course, destroying one building in its course. and skipping the next. The Commisary and Quartermaster's storehouses were unroofed and a portion of the side of one of them ripped off as though it had been sawed in two. The stores in these buildings were thus exposed, and are now covered with canvas. The roofs of several of the soldiers' quarters in some instances are wholly gone, and in others partially so. Of the officers' quarters stones weighing from 50 to 100 pounds each, and the roofs fell in, the ends near their beds odging while the opposite ends fell to the floor; but the occupants escaped without a scratch. The kitchen portion of the quarters occupied by Lieutenant Dimmick's family autographs and photos, and that she believes was destroyed, the wreck showing a fearful Guizau about to negotiate, or that he has mixture of stones and broken cooking ware.
In one of the soldiers' quarters great rocks fell among the bunks occupied by the mer, but only three soldiers were hurt so as to be sent to the hospital. But the great curiosity is the stable, which suffered the greatest damage. There were probably seventy-five horses in the stalls on the side mostly damaged. They broke their halters and moved back as the fall came, the stalls being filled to a depth of five or six feet with rocks, ratters and other debris. Only four horses were caught by the falling wreck. Sections of the roof were carried several hundred yards, and prospects. the great stones from the walls scattered all about. OPENINGS IN RETAIL HOUSES-THE WARDROBE AND LENTEN EXERCISES-THE SPRING BONNETS AGAINST THE LAST SERMON-A REPRODUCTION OF THE GAINSBOROUGH PORTRAIT OF THE DUCHESS OF DEVONSHIRE, IN THE PRESENT STYLE OF DRESS-DRESSMARING-YOUNG LADIES AND THEIR WEAR-ING APPAREL-STYLES FOR MISSES AND SCHOOL GIRLS.

NEW YORK, April 4, 1882.

The openings of stock in the retail houses have begun, and (tell it not in Gath) considerations of the wardrobe divide interest with penitential exercises. The spirit truly is willing in spiritual affairs to conform to observances of the Churches, but, in most ladies, who have the connate care of women for their good looks, the flesh is pitiably weak. There is very little doubt of the salutary impression made by the last earnest sermon of the Rev. Dr. ----; while there is little cause to question the impression made by the "love of a bonnet" that Madame H., the Queen of New York Milliners, coaxed upon the head of the dear little lady whose mind was intent on prayer and fasting. Fashion is an incorrigible and a jealous mistress; and if Spring attractions and novelties in wardrobe wares must per force appear in Lent, what can her devotees do who do not wish to bring up the rear in their toilets, but-begging pardon of consciencegive her passing attention. It may not be just the thing for a devout Church member to peep in on a Millinery Opening en route to the morning service, but the temptations in Madame's windows are powerful; and if poor, pretty little Mrs. ---- is betrayed into stepping in, and remains until after the rehearsal of the "General Confession," surely the Recording Angel, taking into account woman's inherent weakness, will be very lenient in noting the offense.

STYLES IN MILLINERY.

In reference to the styles in Millinery, as revealed in the expressions in retail establishments, we will only say in passing : Large Hats, plentifully trimmed with lace, flowers and ostrich plumes, will probably be in more popular requisition than head-dresses of any other character; and these Hats, with the revival and prevalence of pannier display, reproduce in the toilet an inevitable reminder of the dress of the Duchess of Devonshire, as given in the celebrated last picture of Gainsborough.

Since our last writing there has been no very remarkable development in the styles of dressmaking. Our purveyors and modistes do not seem to be anxious yet to display their imported novelties in costumes. They reveal them charily, preferring to keep them out of sight until the week preceding Easter, with certain in reserve for the week succeeding, when shopping will not be likely to be disturbed by the ringing of Church bells.

PREVAILING COLORS.

Just here, in passing, it may be as well to note the prevailing and the increasing furore for the dark greens, in both the costume and the bonnet. There will be a very decided penchant for costumes of semidiaphanous, and very light and thin materials, this season; and in consequence we shall soon see the cheviots and the camel's hair textures replaced by albatross cloth and nuns' vailing-these last to be succeeded by the lovely batistes and muslins that have come out. In anticipation of bringing them out next week, our furnishing houses are busy in manufacturing costumes, cloaks, etc., for misses and school-girls. For immediate use, the soft woolens, including the flannels, cheviots and tweed textures, the camel's-hair cloths and French cashmere, are in the most prominent demand; with silk costumes for the best dress, Scotch ginghams and zephyr cloths for the later weeks of spring and summer, and exquisite creations of Swiss mull and lace, garnished with ribbons, for graduating dresses and the soiree. With the description given by Mr. Lubin of the charming semi-tropical climate of Sacramento, and the dainty taste said to characterize the ladies of that city, we could but think, as these pretty yet simple costumes were laid out before us, that sooner of later some of them, or their counterparts, would find their way to the stock of Weinstock & Lubin, to be a joy forever to the fair young wearers in that far-off city on the Pacific slope. In noting the present dress for misses and very young ladies, the observant cannot fail to experience a measure of satisfaction in the good sense, with the good taste which is manifest. The time has passed when it is deemed elegant to compress the figure of a child or a young girl; and the time has also passed when the little lady in her dress is mamma cut down. The styles for the young are now distinctive, eminently practical and eminently judicious. Compression in the figure, in the cut and the fit of the dress, is not tolerated, and lungs as well as limbs are allowed full chance for development, from infancy to maturity. And now that common-sense is allowed to dictate, let us hope that the time may be far distant when we shall have a return of encouragement for the bracing, hampering and deforming fashions of the past. The English robe, or the slightly-fitted sacque, that serves as a foundation to which almost any amount of fancy may be applied, is that which prevails in the dress of girls from infancy even to the beginning of their teens. Suits of flannel and other woolens of light weight have the skirt surrounded by a single deep side-plaited flounce, or several flounces, with the waist attached, and giving the effect of a deep, princess basque. A scarf pannier of some fanciful material covers the junction of the flounce and the basque, and the ends of the scarf are disposed in deep, irregular loops falling over ends of unequal depth-a style which exists also in costumes for full-grown ladies. In some models, the front of the basque is covered with a shirred plastron of the plain material in the combination; or with a smooth, shield-shaped plastron of the fancy stuff, small bullet-shaped gilt, steel, or silvered buttons confining the plastron on each side, with the collar and the cuffs of the fancy stuff. The English robe for misses and little girls, in some of the recent models, is made to represent a deep sacque, opening from the shoulders to the foot of the skirt, on a plastron, or Breton front, of some different and contrasting materiala plain and a fancy stuff usually entering into the combination. The sacque is trimmed at the foot with a plaited flounce, from six to eight inches deep, or with several narrow flounces. Heading the flounce or flounces, certain models in plain camel's hair cloth and flannel show an application of fancy stuff, cut straight or in points on scollops on the lower edge; and in some models the breadths of the backs are elongated, and are draped bouffant by laying in plaits or folds in the seams. The plastron, if of fancy stuff, is smooth or plain, sometimes buttoning up from the foot to the neck; or it serves as the foundation for narrow plaited flounces, puffing or shirring. Pretty costumes, for little girls of from five to twelve years, are combinations of French cashmere of light weight, French bunting, or nuns' veiling, with surah of contrasting color, or checked Louisine silk. The lower half of the Breton plastron is covered with the silk in knife-plaitings three inches deep, puffing or shirring, terminating in one or two plaitings at the foot; while the silk on the upper half, shirred from the neck to the depth of three or four inches, forms what is known as the Moliere shirt front, or a deep sagging puff, which falls several inches over the lower half of the front. And this style of front is seen also in the matinees, tea-gowns, or robes de chambre, with which the wardrobes of fashionable ladies are now supplied. The back of the little robe, in some models, forms a basque, which is cut in blocks, points, or in leaf-shape, and extraneous drapery, forming one or two puffs, lifts the basque jauntily.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

MISSES' STYLES.

Varying the English robe for little girls of 7 years old and upward, there are models showing a trimmed skirt, with a loosely-fitted basque or jacket waist; or a little redingote or polonaise. The skirt is surrounded with a single deep plaited flounce, and trimmed with an apron of numerous folds, running to bouffant drapery on the back; or it is surrounded with several parrow plaited flounces, the flounces covering the frent and the edge of the basque, with bouffant drapery on the back. The basque is pointed in front, and has a fanciful back; or little panniers are attached to the front of the basque, by gathering or plaiting, and form drapery on the back, or are best under the bouffant drapery. The style understood appears in pleasing combinations of plain surah and checked silk-the latter being employed for the drapery, the collar and cuffs and all expressive effects.

LATE SPRING FASHIONS.

The same general ideas are noticeable in the suits for the later weeks of spring, in the Scotch ginghams and the zephyr cloths-much use in the way of finish being made of piping in cambric and linen, in white, black or some decided color; and gathered flounces, which may be fluted in laundrying, on some models take the place of plaitings as

It will be time enough a week or two hence to say something to the young misses of Sacramento about the muslin robes in which each little belle is expected to disport in the soirees of the dancing school and on gala occasions in the primary and the grammar schools. Suffice it for the present to say that much lace has part in the creation, and ribbons are plentifully used as garnishing. The fancy for white ribbons, with lace of a slightly yellowish tint, still finds expression on some of the most charming of the muslin robes for misses; while ceil blue has its adherents, and red in ribbon decorations for little girls is in high favor.

FASHIONS IN HATS.

Large hats are as fashionable for misses and school-girls as for the fully grown of our New York belles; and little tots, of not more than three or four years, are seen in poke bonnets of dimensions large enough for their mammas. But our readers must remember that in some cases we cite extreme styles. This is one of them. The large hats, it is true, prevail; but the large poke bonnet for the little folk is not as much in vogue as the hats; while the standard Derby and English walking hats are not out of style, and retain favor for their suitability for common and serviceable wear. The hats are faced with faillentine or soft gros grain silk, or soft satin and ostrich plumes, varied by garlands of flowers, are the usual trimming. The facing is put in smooth or plaited, and in some models it is gathered or shirred, and two feathers -the feathers lapped in front, and twining each backward-sweep around the crown, or a dense garland of flowers surrounds the crown. We sometimes see a little girl who seems almost smothered under the weight of her hat, but this is an example of extreme style. Judicious and tasteful mothers encourage a less pronounced style in the dress of their little girls, selecting hats that have not conspicuously wide brims, and trimming them with more simplicity. Feathers used with moderation are always allowable on the hats of little girls, and this season there are dainty wreaths of daisies, asters, rose buds, wild roses, buttercups and cowslips, specially designed for trimming the hats of misses and school girls. Flowers and feathers are both used without assistance from other garnitures, or drapery of soft faille or of soft satin, or ribbon may be employed in conjunction.

WRAPS IN NEW YORK CITY.

In your climate, even at this early period of the season, wraps are doubtless of unimportant consideration. Here it is different. Now and then we hear strawberries cried in the streets; but at this moment a light shower of snow is falling, and to-morrow we may dress furs around us with complacency. Wraps, then, are of interest with us : nor can we expect to be able to lay them aside before the first of May. The regulation wrap for girls is the casaquia or the deep English jacket, made of French, English or American cloth of medium or light weight, in ecru, gray, or some one of the approved dark cloth colors. Cloths in invisible checks, and in cheviot mixtures and hair stripes, are also seen in the spring wraps for girls; with an occasional jacket or mantelet in checkered cloth of eeru or gray tint, in which gold or steel tinsel is interwoven. The "Raglan," a mantelet which combines certain features of the Dolman, and certain features of the "Mother Hubbard" cloak, with a shirred back forming a sagging puff at the waist line, and wide sleeves cut in one with the back and terminating in a self-rufile, has come out in these tinsel-dashed, checked cloths. A model in ecru, dashed with gold tinsel, is finished with facings and piping of red faillentine, and ecru-tasseled cords are draped across the back. A pleated collar, faced with red, surrounds the neck, and military cords and buttons close up the front. We might tell you much more, but fear your readers would grow weary over a longer letter; and then we might say something which Mr. Lubin, lately investigating for himself, has already said.

SPRING OPENINGS.

With the openings now of every day occurrence, fashion items are as abundant as the dishes on a king's table. The question is not what we shall touch, but what we may leave untouched. Possibly we may return in our next to millinery; we shall possibly have something new to tell in regard to the mantua, while our friends may rest assured that we quote Gotham news as it certainly transpires.

A. FI. CHER, GREAT SACHEM, will efficially visit the Tribe THIS (Wednesday) EVENING, and it is carnestly desired that every member of Owosso will be on hand. Council fire kindled at 7:30 o'clock. ARGUED. -The motion to set aside the satmade by Attorney-General Hart was argued before Judge Denson, of the Superior Court, last evening. General Hart spoke from 7:15 9:30 P. M, and Judge McFarland from 9:30 10:30 P. M. The argument was very elaborate, and embraced constitutional questions and questions of practice. Judge McFarland has until Saturday to file a brief, and a decision is looked for next week. The issue is as to the right of the Supervisors to compronise the tax suits against the four railroad companies sued for delinquent taxes.

Colonel Robert Ingersoll.

When, during the last Presidential cam-pair, Henry Ward Beecher introduced Colonel Robert Ingersoll to a very crowded meeting in Brooklyn, as "the greatest orator of the age," though he said what may be open to dispute, he gave prominence at an appropriate time to Colonel Ingersoli's strongest qualification. For the genial man of Illinois or rather now of Washington, though Illinois is the State most honored in his wonderful success as a public speaker, because he won it during the time he resided there—is a born public speaker, as certainly as Nature put up William Shakespeare for a poet.
Colonel Ingersoil i, a lawyer by profession.
He had built up a good practice in Illinois, when his eminous as a speaker gave him a wider supper of popularity as a locturer. The wider scope of popularity as a loctarer. The golden-mouthed Americae is 50 years of age. He was born and raised East, but earned his first actoriety as a Western advocate. His personal appearance and gifts are remarkably pleasing. With a well-built body, a round, good-natured face, large, dark, eloquent eyes, easy, unconscious grace of movement, he captivates his heavers—to perpetrate a bull for once—before he opens his mouth. His appearance, preliminary how and smile. His appearance, preliminary how and smile, secure him an interested and delighted attention. Mr. Ingersoll is a simple, modest man. The unconsciousness of early childhood possesses him, and composity and pretension are among the subjects of his happiest bauter. His eloquence has great variety in it, now full of tears and then a trumpet peal; now copious and vehement as a cataract, then keen, incisive and concise as an extract from

PACIFIC SLOPE.

SANTA CRUZ, April 11th .- A jury was obtained yesterday in the second trial of A. O. Boyce, charged with the killing of John Scites. To-day has been occupied with medical testimony on the part of the people. Some new witnesses have been called, but the evidence is materially the same as at the former trial, at which the jury disagreed, standing seven for conviction and five for ac-

Railroad Taxes.

Fresno, April 11th.—P. D. Wigginton, attorney for the Central and Southern Pacific Railroad Companies, appeared before the Supervisors to-day, for the purpose of proposing a compromise of their taxes, but the Board informed him that its attorney, D. S. Terry, had advised that it possessed no power in the premises, so he only stated the proposition which he intended to have made, viz, to pay 60 per cent, of the State and county taxes, the school taxes in full, and the attorney's fees and costs. A spirited debate occurred between Terry and Wigginton as to the power of the State Board of Equalization, value of railroads, etc.

Catarrh.

The Sufferings of a Boston Druggist Pen-Pictured.

A Loathsome Disease Cured by a Simple Remedy.

Encouragement for all Afflicted with Catarrh.

Gentlemen: I hereby certify that I have had Catarrh for ten years, and for the last six years have been a terrible sufferer. I was rendered partially deaf, had buzzing in the head, pains across the temple, dizzy spells, weak and painful eyes, swollen and ulcerated tonsils, hard and constant cough, severe pain across the chest, and every indication of consumption. My head ached all the time. The matter accumulated so rapidly in my head and throat that I could not keep them free. Frequently at night I would spring out of bed, it seemed to me, at the point of suffocation. I would then have recourse to every means in my power to dislodge the mucus from my throat and head before being able to sleep again. For a period of six years my tonsils were ulcerated, and so much inflamed that I could with difficulty swallow. I finally consulted an eminent surgeon in regard to an operation on them, and at his request postponed it. The constant inflammation and ulceration in my throat, caused by the poisonous matter dropping down from my head, had so irritated and inflamed my lungs that I coughed incessantly, - a deep, hard cough. Meanwhile my system began to show the effects of this disease, so that I lost flesh, grew pale, and showed every symptom of an early death by consumption When matters had reached this stage, or about six months ago, I began the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL URE FOR CATARRH. After using the first bottle I egan to improve rapidly. The first dose seemed o clear my head as I had not known it to be for to clear my head as I had not known it to be for years. It seemed gradually to arrest the discharges. It stopped my cough in three days. By using it as a gargle I soon reduced the inflammation and swelling of my tonsils, so that they soon ceased to trouble me. The soreness across my chest disappeared, the buzzing noises in my head ceased, my senses of hearing and seeing were completely restored, and every symptom of disease that had reduced me to the verge of the grave disappeared by the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH. I have been thus explicit because, as a druggist, I have seen a great deal of suffering from Catarrh, and hope to convince many that this is a great remedy. I am familiar with the treatment of Catarrh as practised by the best physicians, and have consulted the most eminent about my case. I have used every kind of remedy and apparatus that have appeared during a period of six years past, and have, while following their use, taken great care of my general health, but obtained no relief or encouragement from any of them. Since curing myself with SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, I have recommended it in over one hundred cases without a single case of failure, and have in numerous instances received wholesale orders from parties to whom I have sold one bottle. This is the only patent medicing I ever recommended, never having believed in them before, although constantly engaged in their sale.

Very gratefully yours,

GEORGE F. DINSMORE,
BOSTON, Feb. 23, 1875. (Now of Worcester, Mass.) rears It seemed gradually to arrest the discharges.

Then personally appeared the said George F
Dinsmore, and made oath that the foregoing state ment by him subscribed is true.
